STUDY BOOKLET · 11 NOVEMBER 2026 · 1 KISLEV 5787

Tehillim 94: The Song of the Fourth Day

An excerpt for LinkedIn: the introduction and Chapter Seven, “The Throne That Frames Mischief by Statute.” The full study booklet runs to 90 pages.

ויהי ה' לי למשגב

Aryeh Leib Thorne Toren

Tehillim 94: The Song of the Fourth Day

An excerpt for LinkedIn: the introduction and Chapter Seven, "The Throne That Frames Mischief by Statute." The full study booklet runs to 90 pages.

Aryeh Leib Thorne Toren

Prepared on Wednesday, 11 November 2026 (1 Kislev 5787, the second day of Rosh Chodesh Kislev), Jerusalem, in the week of Parashas Toldos.
Not for sale. For study at the table, in the beis midrash and at home.

Prepared in deep partnership and cooperation with Grok and xAI

A note on sources

This LinkedIn excerpt contains only the introduction, Chapter Seven, and Appendix A (Tehillim 94 in full). The other chapters, and the other appendices named in the introduction, are in the full 90-page booklet, not in this file.

Every Hebrew quotation in this booklet was cut directly from the text as opened on Sefaria on 11 November 2026, with vowels and cantillation removed. Verses from Tanach are given in the English of Tanakh: The Holy Scriptures (Jewish Publication Society, 1985), as published on Sefaria. All other translations are my own working translations, made against the Hebrew printed beside them; where words are omitted from a long comment, the source line says so. The edition used for each text is listed in the Bibliography.

Divine Names. In English this booklet writes G-d, L-rd and Hashem. In Hebrew the Tetragrammaton and the short two-letter Name are printed as ה׳, and the name Elokim as אלקים. No Divine Name is printed in full.

Sources and limits. Every teaching in this booklet comes from a classical text opened for it: the Mishnah, the Talmud Bavli, Midrash Tehillim, Rashi, Ibn Ezra, Radak, the Metzudos, the Malbim, and the siddur. No secondary or web source is quoted. The custom of adding the first verses of Tehillim 95 to the song of Wednesday is reported from the siddur as printed (Siddur Ashkenaz on Sefaria); its history is not discussed.

Care in speech. The psalm speaks of the wicked. The commentators apply it to idolatrous kingdoms, to Babylon and to the destroyers of the Beis HaMikdash. This booklet keeps to their applications, and applies its words to no living person, party or government.

Contents

Introduction. The Song of the Fourth Day 5

The Levites' psalm for Wednesday, and how this booklet reads it

Chapter Seven. The Throne That Frames Mischief by Statute 9

Verses 20–21: injustice written into law

Appendix A. Tehillim 94 in full 14

Glossary 16

Bibliography 18

INTRODUCTION

The Song of the Fourth Day

The Levites' psalm for Wednesday, and how this booklet reads it

Tehillim 94 is the psalm the Levites sang in the Beis HaMikdash on the fourth day of the week. This introduction sets out why it belongs to that day, the Malbim's claim that it is one argument with the songs of Shabbos and Friday, and the order of the booklet.

The song of the fourth day

Every morning in the Beis HaMikdash, while the wine of the daily offering was poured, the Levites stood on their platform and sang. Each day of the week had its own psalm. The Mishnah in Tamid lists them, and the list is still printed at the end of the morning prayers in every siddur.

> השיר שהיו הלוים אומרים במקדש, ביום הראשון היו אומרים (תהילים כ"ד:א'), לה' הארץ ומלואה תבל וישבי בה. בשני היו אומרים (שם מח), גדול ה' ומהלל מאד בעיר אלקינו הר קדשו. בשלישי היו אומרים (שם פב), אלקים נצב בעדת אל בקרב אלקים ישפט. ברביעי היו אומרים (שם צד), ה' נקמות ה' ה' נקמות הופיע
>
> The song that the Levites would say in the Mikdash: on the first day they would say "The earth is the L-rd's and all that it holds" (Tehillim 24). On the second they would say "Great is the L-rd and much acclaimed" (Tehillim 48). On the third they would say "G-d stands in the assembly of G-d" (Tehillim 82). On the fourth they would say "G-d of retribution, L-rd, G-d of retribution, appear!" (Tehillim 94).
>
> Mishnah Tamid 7:4

Today is Wednesday, 11 November 2026, the second day of Rosh Chodesh Kislev 5787, in the week of Parashas Toldos. The psalm of the day is Tehillim 94. Most of us say it quickly, standing, at the end of Shacharis, with our coats half on. This booklet is an attempt to stop and read it slowly.

It is not an easy psalm to stop with. It opens with a cry that sounds harsh to modern ears: "G-d of retribution, L-rd, G-d of retribution, appear!" It speaks of the widow and the stranger killed, of fools who say that G-d does not see, of a throne of destruction that writes its wrongs into law. It is also the psalm of "Happy is the man whom You discipline," of "the L-rd will not forsake His people," of "when I am filled with cares, Your consolations delight my soul." It holds the whole range of a believer's answer to injustice, from protest to comfort.

Why the fourth day?

The Gemara asks why each psalm belongs to its day, and ties each one to the work of creation on that day. For the fourth day its answer is short and sharp.

> ברביעי היו אומרים: "ה' נקמות ה'", על שם שברא חמה ולבנה, ועתיד ליפרע מעובדיהן

On the fourth day they would say "G-d of retribution, L-rd," because on it He created the sun and the moon, and He is destined to exact payment from those who worship them.

Rosh Hashanah 31a

On the fourth day the sun and the moon were set in the sky. They are the most obvious powers in the world, the givers of light, heat, seasons and time. They are also, in the history of mankind, the first things people worshipped in place of their Creator. The Gemara reads the song of the fourth day as a promise: the day the great lights were made is the day to remember that they have a Master, and that those who bow to them will be called to account.

There is a lesson in that for a booklet written on Rosh Chodesh. The Jewish calendar is built on the moon, and the month we have just begun is the month of the lights of Chanukah. We count by the lights; we do not serve them. The song of the fourth day guards that line.

One song in three parts

The Malbim, Rabbi Meir Leibush Weiser (1809–1879), opens his commentary on the psalm with a claim about its structure.

> בסימן הזה ספר טענות המכחישים את ההשגחה שמביאים ראיה שאין ה' משגיח על העולם ממה שהרשעים מצילים והצדיקים מעונים ביסורים, ומשיב תשובה ע"ז, ובזה יש לו סמיכות והוא ענין אחד עם שיר מזמור ליום השבת שהוא ג"כ על ענין זה באופן שכל השלשה מזמורים האלה הם עצם אחד

In this psalm he recounts the claims of those who deny Providence, who bring proof that Hashem does not watch over the world from the fact that the wicked prosper and the righteous are afflicted with suffering; and he answers them. In this it is connected and is one subject with "A psalm, a song for the Shabbos day" (Tehillim 92), which is also on this subject, so that all three of these psalms are one essence.

Malbim on Tehillim 94:1–4

Tehillim 92, the song of Shabbos, asks why "the wicked sprout like grass," and answers that "it is to destroy them forever." Tehillim 93 is the song of the sixth day: "The L-rd is King, He is robed in majesty." Tehillim 94 takes up the question again, more urgently, and answers it at length. The three are one argument. That is why the full text of Tehillim 92 and 93 is printed as Appendix B.

The song of Shabbos even contains the key words of our psalm.

> מה־גדלו מעשיך ה' מאד עמקו מחשבתיך איש־בער לא ידע וכסיל לא־יבין את־זאת בפרח רשעים כמו־עשב ויציצו כל־פעלי און להשמדם עדי־עד
>
> How great are Your works, O L-RD, how very subtle Your designs! A brutish man cannot know, a fool cannot understand this: though the wicked sprout like grass, though all evildoers blossom, it is only that they may be destroyed forever. (JPS)
>
> Tehillim 92:6–8

"A brutish man cannot know, a fool cannot understand this." In Tehillim 94:8 the same pair returns as a rebuke: "Take heed, you most brutish people; fools, when will you get wisdom?" The fool, the kesil, is a word we will meet again. Its root, k-s-l, is also the root of the name of this month, Kislev, and of kesel, trust. Chapter Three takes up the connection.

How the siddur ends it

In the siddur, the song of Wednesday does not end with the last verse of Tehillim 94. It continues straight into the first three verses of the next psalm.

> לכו נרננה לה' נריעה לצור ישענו נקדמה פניו בתודה בזמרות נריע לו כי ה' גדול ה' ומלך גדול על־כל־אלקים
>
> Come, let us sing joyously to the L-RD, raise a shout for our rock and deliverer; let us come into His presence with praise; let us raise a shout for Him in song! For the L-RD is a great G-d, the great king of all divine beings. (JPS)
>
> Tehillim 95:1–3

The psalm ends with "the L-rd our G-d will annihilate them," a hard word. The siddur does not let us walk out of shul on that word. It adds "Come, let us sing joyously to the L-rd." The customs behind this addition are not discussed in this booklet; the siddur as printed is the source. But its effect is clear. The song of the day ends in song.

The order of this booklet

The chapters follow the psalm in order.

- Chapter One, "G-d of Retribution, Appear," reads verses 1 and 2, with the midrash that G-d is master of His anger.
- Chapter Two, "How Long Shall the Wicked Exult?", reads verses 3 to 7: the arrogance of the wicked, the widow and the stranger, and the claim that G-d does not see.
- Chapter Three, "He Who Implants the Ear," reads verses 8 to 11, the answer to the fools, and the kesil of Kislev.
- Chapter Four, "Happy Is the Man You Discipline," reads verses 12 and 13 with the Gemara in Berachos on suffering.
- Chapter Five, "Judgement Shall Return to Righteousness," reads verses 14 and 15, with Ibn Ezra's parable of the rain and the Malbim on mishpat and tzedek.
- Chapter Six, "When My Foot Slips," reads verses 16 to 19: despair, support and consolation.
- Chapter Seven, "The Throne That Frames Mischief by Statute," reads verses 20 and 21, on injustice written into law, with Chanukah and Toldos.
- Chapter Eight, "The Song They Did Not Finish," reads verses 22 and 23 and the Gemara's account of the Levites singing this psalm as the Mikdash fell.

Each chapter ends with questions for the table. The appendices give Tehillim 94 in full, the two psalms that form its unit with it, Tehillim 95 in full, the songs of the other days of the week, the song of Haazinu, "Vengeance is Mine," whose language our psalm echoes, and the commentaries of Rashi, Radak, the Metzudas, Ibn Ezra and the Malbim, with Midrash Tehillim, in the original Hebrew.

A word about care

A psalm about the wicked invites us to point at someone. The commentators do name historical oppressors: Radak reads the psalm as a prayer of the exiles in Babylon, and the Gemara remembers the destruction of the two Temples. This booklet keeps to those. It does not apply the psalm's words to any living person or party. The laws of speech that the Chafetz Chaim taught us apply to commentary as well. The psalm is also a mirror: the fool who says "G-d does not see" is a voice that speaks inside each of us at times.

CHAPTER SEVEN

The Throne That Frames Mischief by Statute

Verses 20–21: injustice written into law

The psalm describes a throne that makes iniquity its law. This chapter reads Rashi, Radak, the Metzudas, Ibn Ezra and the Malbim on the throne of destruction, the decrees of the Greek kingdom remembered on Chanukah, and the hands of Esav.

Can such a throne be Yours?

היחברך כסא הוות יצר עמל עלי־חק יגודו על־נפש צדיק ודם נקי ירשיעו

> Shall the seat of injustice be Your partner, that frames mischief by statute? They band together to do away with the righteous; they condemn the innocent to death. (JPS)
>
> Tehillim 94:20–21

These two verses are the most political in the psalm, and the most precise. They describe not a lawless robber but a lawful power: a throne, a court, a statute. Injustice that has learned to write its own laws.

The phrase kisei havos, “seat of injustice” or “throne of destruction,” is hard to translate. Havos is ruin, calamity, the crushing of others. Ibn Ezra calls the verb “a rare word.”

היחברך - מלה זרה. והטעם: היהיה חבר לך בעל כסא הוות או איש כמו הוות בעבור הרשע, הווה תמיד לחשוב מחשבות רעות, על כן מלת הוות ואני תפלה ופירוש מרמה, איש מרמה שהוא יוצר עמל ואון כמו פועל ובודה מלבו וזה הוא חיקו, וזה טעם עלי חוק

> “Shall it be Your partner?”: a rare word. The meaning: shall the owner of a throne of destruction be a partner to You; or a man like destruction, meaning the wicked man, who is always thinking evil thoughts. … A man of deceit, who frames mischief and iniquity, as one who makes it up from his own heart, and this is his statute; and this is the meaning of “by statute.”
>
> Ibn Ezra on Tehillim 94:20 (words omitted)

Four readings of the throne

Rashi reads the throne as the throne of idolatry.

היחברך כסא הוות. היוכל להדמות לך האמות היוצרים צלמים ומסכות של עמל? עלי חק. בשביל חק, להיות חק להם עבודתם

"Shall the seat of injustice be Your partner?": can the nations who form images and molten idols of mischief be compared to You? "By statute": for the sake of a statute, that their worship should be a statute for them.

Rashi on Tehillim 94:20

יגודו. יאספו גדודים על נפש צדיק להרג: ירשיעו. יחיבו בדין להרגו

"They band together": they gather in troops against the life of the righteous man, to kill him. "They condemn": they find him guilty in judgement, to kill him.

Rashi on Tehillim 94:21

For Rashi, the nations who "form images and molten idols of mischief" are those who make their worship into law. "By statute" means: their idolatry is fixed as statute for them. The phrase yotzer amal, "who frames mischief," is read as a play on yotzer, the one who forms images. The connection to the song of the fourth day is plain. The Gemara said that the psalm of Wednesday is about those who worship the sun and the moon. Here, near the end of the psalm, they return as a power that enforces its worship by law.

Radak reads the throne as the throne of Babylon.

היחברך. היחובר עמך לפי שאמר תנחומיך ישעשעו נפשי אמר ידעתי כי מה שהבטחתני ע"י נביאך אמת יהיה כי אתה שופט אמת וכסאך כסא אמת, ולא כמו כסא נבוכדנצר כי הוא כסא הוות ועמל

"Shall it be Your partner?": shall it be joined with You? Because he said "Your consolations delight my soul," he said: I know that what You promised me through Your prophet will come true, for You are a true Judge and Your throne is a throne of truth; not like the throne of Nebuchadnezzar, for it is a throne of destruction and mischief.

Radak on Tehillim 94:20

יצר עמל עלי חוק. כי אותו כסא פועל ועושה עמל ואון עלי חוק כלומר כחוקו שיעשה עמל ואון ולא כך חקך אלא משפט אמת

"That frames mischief by statute": for that throne works and makes mischief and iniquity by statute; that is, as its statute, that it should do mischief and iniquity. Your statute is not so; it is true judgement.

Radak on Tehillim 94:20

G-d's throne is a throne of truth; Nebuchadnezzar's is a throne of destruction and mischief. Its law is mischief; its statute is iniquity. Radak's final line is short: "Your statute is not so; it is true judgement."

The Metzudas reads it in terms of the poor.

> היחברך. וכי יחבר עמך להיות דומה לך הכסא של אנשים העושים הוות המשברים ורוצצים את האביונים
>
> "Shall it be Your partner?": can the throne of men who do destruction, who break and crush the needy, be joined with You, to be like You?
>
> Metzudas David on Tehillim 94:20

> עלי חוק. להיות להם חק קבוע
>
> "By statute": to be for them a fixed law.
>
> Metzudas David on Tehillim 94:20

The throne belongs to people "who break and crush the needy," and their mischief is "a fixed law."

The Malbim gives the fullest reading.

> היחברך חסא הוות, וכי אפשר שיתחבר עמך כסא הוות, המושל הרשע שיושב על הכסא ומנהיג ברשע עד שידמה במליצה כאלו הוות והשבר הוא המושל היושב על הכסא, וההוות המושל הוא יוצר עמל עלי חק, הוא מחוקק ומניח נימוסים של און ועמל ומצייר וכותב אותם שישארו לחק ומשפט ונימוס, ומפרש מהו העמל שהוא מניח לחק, שהוא יגודו על נפשי צדיק, שמניח חקים שעל פיהם יתגודדו גדודים על נפש צדיק לרצחו, ובהחקים האלה דם נקי ירשיעו
>
> "Shall the throne of destruction be Your partner?": is it possible that the throne of destruction be joined with You, the wicked ruler who sits on the throne and governs with wickedness, until, in poetic language, it is as though destruction and ruin were the ruler sitting on the throne? And this ruler of destruction "frames mischief by statute": he legislates and lays down laws of iniquity and mischief, and draws and writes them so that they remain as statute, judgement and law. And he explains what is the mischief he lays down as statute: "they band together against the life of the righteous," he lays down statutes by which troops band together against the life of the righteous to murder him; and by these statutes "they condemn the innocent to death."
>
> Malbim on Tehillim 94:19–21

> וזה א"א לומר שכסא ה' יהיה מתחבר אל כסא הוות שיוצר חקי עמל כאלה, ואם כן בודאי ישלם להרשע כרעתו
>
> And it is impossible to say that the throne of Hashem should be joined to a throne of destruction that frames such statutes of mischief; and if so, He will surely repay the wicked according to his evil.
>
> Malbim on Tehillim 94:21

The Malbim describes a regime in which the law itself is the instrument of murder. The court finds the innocent guilty and the murderer innocent, and it does so "by judgement and law." The poetic language of the psalm, he says, makes destruction itself the ruler sitting on the throne. His conclusion is the answer of the whole psalm. If G-d is the supreme Lawgiver, it is impossible that He should be partner to such a throne; and therefore He will surely repay.

Mischief by statute and the decrees of Yavan

The month of Kislev remembers a throne of this kind. The Chanukah story begins not with a battle but with decrees. The companion booklet on Kislev reads the Rambam's account: the Greek kingdom "issued decrees against Israel," to abolish their faith and prevent them from occupying themselves with Torah and mitzvos (Hilchos Megillah vaChanukah 3:1). The persecution was a legal program, written down and enforced. It is a precise example of what our verse calls "mischief by statute."

The Chashmonaim did not answer the decrees with a better statute. They answered them by refusing them, at the cost of their lives, and by relighting the Menorah. The lights of Chanukah are, among other things, the answer of verse 20: a throne that frames mischief by statute cannot be G-d's partner, and in the end it does not last.

Toldos: the hands of Esav

The Midrash on this week's parashah, read in the companion booklet on Kislev, sets the voice of Yaakov against the hands of Esav (Bereishis Rabbah 65:20). The hands of Esav are power, and power in its organised form becomes a throne. Esav, we saw in Chapter One, planned to murder his brother after a decent interval. The Malbim's reading of verse 21 describes the same plan written into law: "they band together against the life of the righteous." Rashi reads the verb yagodu as gathering in troops, gedudim.

It is worth saying what the psalm does not say. It does not tell the righteous to seize the throne. It tells them that the throne of destruction is not G-d's, and that He will repay it. The answer is left to G-d; the faith is asked of us.

A note of care

Verses 20 and 21 are the verses most often applied to the politics of the day. The commentators applied them to idolatrous empires, to Babylon, and to a court that acquits murderers. This booklet does not go further. Any reader who sees in them the shape of a regime of his own day may draw that conclusion for himself; but a booklet of Torah should not hand the psalm to one side of a living argument. The Chafetz Chaim's rules on speech apply to governments too, where real people are named.

What the verses ask of every reader is simpler. They ask us to believe that law and justice are meant to be joined, and that law which crushes the needy is not law in G-d's eyes. They ask us, in our own small thrones, at home, at work, in our communities, never to frame mischief by statute: never to use a rule to do what we would be ashamed to do without one.

For the table

1. Rashi, Radak and the Malbim each see a different throne. Which reading speaks to you most?
2. The Malbim describes a court that acquits the murderer "by judgement and law." Why is injustice by law worse than lawless crime?
3. The Chashmonaim answered the decrees by refusing them and lighting the Menorah. What is the answer of a single person to an unjust rule?
4. Where, in a small way, are we tempted to use a rule to do what we would be ashamed to do without one?

Appendix A. Tehillim 94 in full

Hebrew from the Sefaria Miqra text (vowels removed); English from Tanakh: The Holy Scriptures (Jewish Publication Society, 1985), via Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026, with divine names written G-d and L-rd and the Hebrew Divine Names replaced as explained in the note on sources.

1 ה'-נקמות ה' נקמות הופיע

G-d of retribution, L-RD, G-d of retribution, appear!

2 הנשא שפט הארץ השב גמול על־גאים

Rise up, judge of the earth, give the arrogant their deserts!

3 עד־מתי רשעים ה' עד־מתי רשעים יעלזו

How long shall the wicked, O L-RD, how long shall the wicked exult,

4 יביעו ידברו עתק יתאמרו כל־פעלי און shall they utter insolent speech, shall all evildoers vaunt themselves?

5 עמך ה' ידכאו ונחלתך יענו

They crush Your people, O L-RD, they afflict Your very own;

6 אלמנה וגר יהרגו ויתומים ירצחו

they kill the widow and the stranger; they murder the fatherless,

7 ויאמרו לא יראה־ה' ולא־יבין אלקי יעקב

thinking, “The L-RD does not see it, the G-d of Jacob does not pay heed.”

8 בינו בערים בעם וכסילים מתי תשכילו

Take heed, you most brutish people; fools, when will you get wisdom?

9 הנטע אזן הלא ישמע אם־יצר עין הלא יביט

Shall He who implants the ear not hear, He who forms the eye not see?

10 היסר גוים הלא יוכיח המלמד אדם דעת

Shall He who disciplines nations not punish, He who instructs men in knowledge?

11 ה' ידע מחשבות אדם כי־המה הבל

The L-RD knows the designs of men to be futile.

12 אשרי הגבר אשר־תיסרנו ה' ומתורתך תלמדנו

Happy is the man whom You discipline, O L-RD, the man You instruct in Your teaching,

13 להשקיט לו מימי רע עד יכרה לרשע שחת to give him tranquillity in times of misfortune, until a pit be dug for the wicked.

14 כי לא־יטש ה' עמו ונחלתו לא יעזב

For the L-RD will not forsake His people; He will not abandon His very own.

15 כי־עד־צדק ישוב משפט ואחריו כל־ישרי־לב

Judgment shall again accord with justice and all the upright shall rally to it.

16 מי־יקום לי עם־מרעים מי־יתיצב לי עם־פעלי און

Who will take my part against evil men? Who will stand up for me against wrongdoers?

17 לולי ה' עזרתה לי כמעט שכנה דומה נפשי

Were not the L-RD my help, I should soon dwell in silence.

18 אם־אמרתי מטה רגלי חסדך ה' יסעדני

When I think my foot has given way, Your faithfulness, O L-RD, supports me.

19 ברב שרעפי בקרבי תנחומיך ישעשעו נפשי

When I am filled with cares, Your assurance soothes my soul.

20 היחברך כסא הוות יצר עמל עלי־חק

Shall the seat of injustice be Your partner, that frames mischief by statute?

21 יגודו על־נפש צדיק ודם נקי ירשיעו

They band together to do away with the righteous; they condemn the innocent to death.

22 ויהי ה' לי למשגב ואלקי לצור מחסי

But the L-RD is my haven; my G-d is my sheltering rock.

23 וישב עליהם את־אונם וברעתם יצמיתם יצמיתם ה' אלקינו

He will make their evil recoil upon them, annihilate them through their own wickedness; the L-RD our G-d will annihilate them.

Glossary

Arachin. A tractate of the Talmud Bavli on vows of valuation; 11b discusses the song of the Levites.

Ashrei. "Happy" or "fortunate"; the first word of the book of Tehillim.

Beis HaMikdash. The Holy Temple in Jerusalem.

Chafetz Chaim. Rabbi Yisrael Meir Kagan (1839–1933), author of the classic work on the laws of speech.

Chashmonaim. The priestly family of Matisyahu and his sons, who led the revolt against the Greek kingdom.

Haazinu. The song of Moshe in Devarim 32.

Ibn Ezra. Rabbi Avraham ibn Ezra (1089–1167), grammarian, poet and commentator.

Kesil. A fool; from the root k-s-l, which also gives kesel, "trust," and the name of the month Kislev.

Levites. The tribe of Levi, who sang and played in the Beis HaMikdash.

Lulei. "Were it not"; the word that opens Tehillim 94:17.

Malbim. Rabbi Meir Leibush Weiser (1809–1879), commentator on all of Tanach.

Metzudas David, Metzudas Tziyon. Commentaries on the Prophets and Writings by Rabbi David Altschuler and his son Rabbi Yechiel Hillel (eighteenth century).

Midrash Tehillim. The classical midrash on the book of Tehillim, also called Shocher Tov.

Mishmar. A priestly watch; the Kohanim served in twenty-four watches, each for a week.

Mishpat. Judgement; the strict line of the law.

Moreh Nevuchim. The Guide for the Perplexed of the Rambam.

Radak. Rabbi David Kimchi (1160–1235), grammarian and commentator, of Narbonne.

Rashi. Rabbi Shlomo Yitzchaki (1040–1105), the foremost commentator on Tanach and Talmud.

Shir shel Yom. The song of the day; the psalm sung by the Levites for each day of the week, said at the end of Shacharis.

Tamid. The daily offering; also the tractate of the Mishnah that describes its service.

Tzedek. Righteousness; justice that looks at the person, the time and the place.

Yehoyariv. The first of the twenty-four priestly watches.

Bibliography

Bibliography

Tanach

Tehillim 24; 48; 55:19; 81; 82; 92; 93; 94; 95. English: Tanakh: The Holy Scriptures (Philadelphia: Jewish Publication Society, 1985). Hebrew: Miqra according to the Masorah. Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026. https://www.sefaria.org/Psalms.94

Bereishis 25:27; 27:41; Shemos 4:11; Devarim 8:5; 10:18; 32:1–43. English: Tanakh: The Holy Scriptures (Philadelphia: Jewish Publication Society, 1985). Hebrew: Miqra according to the Masorah. Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026. https://www.sefaria.org/Deuteronomy.32

Shmuel I 12:22; Yeshayahu 29:15; Yechezkel 8:12; Mishlei 3:11–12; Eichah 3:22–26. English: Tanakh: The Holy Scriptures (Philadelphia: Jewish Publication Society, 1985). Hebrew: Miqra according to the Masorah. Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026. https://www.sefaria.org/Lamentations.3

Commentaries on Tehillim 94

Rashi (Rabbi Shlomo Yitzchaki, 1040–1105). Commentary on Tehillim 94. Hebrew as published on Sefaria. Working translation. Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026. https://www.sefaria.org/Rashi_on_Psalms.94

Ibn Ezra, Rabbi Avraham (1089–1167). Commentary on Tehillim 94. Hebrew as published on Sefaria. Working translation. Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026. https://www.sefaria.org/Ibn_Ezra_on_Psalms.94

Radak (Rabbi David Kimchi, 1160–1235). Commentary on Tehillim 94. Hebrew as published on Sefaria. Working translation. Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026. https://www.sefaria.org/Radak_on_Psalms.94

Altschuler, Rabbi David and Rabbi Yechiel Hillel. Metzudas David on Tehillim 94. Hebrew as published on Sefaria. Working translation. Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026. https://www.sefaria.org/Metzudat_David_on_Psalms.94

Malbim (Rabbi Meir Leibush Weiser, 1809–1879). Commentary on Tehillim 94. Hebrew as published on Sefaria. Working translation. Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026. https://www.sefaria.org/Malbim_on_Psalms.94

Mishnah, Talmud and Midrash

Mishnah Tamid 7:4; Pirkei Avos 4:22. Hebrew as published on Sefaria. Working translation. Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026. https://www.sefaria.org/Mishnah_Tamid.7.4

Berachos 5a; Rosh Hashanah 31a; Arachin 11b. Hebrew/Aramaic: William Davidson Edition, Vocalized Aramaic. English consulted: William Davidson Edition (Koren Noé Talmud, with commentary by Rabbi Adin Even-Israel Steinsaltz). Working translation. Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026. https://www.sefaria.org/Arakhin.11b

Midrash Tehillim (Shocher Tov) 94. Hebrew as published on Sefaria. Working translation. Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026. https://www.sefaria.org/Midrash_Tehillim.94

Liturgy

Siddur Ashkenaz, Weekday Shacharis, Concluding Prayers, Song of the Day (Wednesday). Hebrew as published on Sefaria (Metsudah Siddur). Sefaria, opened 11 November 2026. https://www.sefaria.org/Siddur_Ashkenaz,_Weekday,_Shacharit,_Concluding_Prayers,_Song_of_the_Day

Companion works

Thorne Toren, Aryeh Leib. Kislev: The Architecture of Completion. Study booklet, 11 November 2026 (companion to this booklet).

Prepared in deep partnership and cooperation with Grok and xAI

All glory to the Ribono shel Olam · Errors are mine

Aryeh Leib Thorne Toren